

Final round of feedback

Hi team! This is close. I have comments below, but I think that the opening paragraph could use a once over. As this takes shape, I'm thinking that old-to-new info is the organizational principle for that paragraph, as I mention in a comment below. The problem frame is forcing you to undercut the work of BCCG (as a "destabilizing moment), and there's just not enough room in this document to finesse that bit. So stick to the main story for that opening paragraph: "two known orgs (old info) are partnering to raise funds for this new project. And end that paragraph with the "Grow better together."

Finally: The shorter and tighter the better. After you're done with that first paragraph, go through the whole thing and reduce for concision. THEN WE CAN START TO SEND IT OUT!

As a side-note:

Margaret needed a 150 word press release for the UW-Extension's newsletter. I used your sentences, with small revisions to make that happen. Thanks! It's below.
